Cerebral Security Solutions processes personal data in a way that complies with the relevant data protection legislation. We may collect some personal data from you through submission forms or surveys hosted on our webpages.

Each time you submit information through our webpages, there will be an explanation as to why we need that information. Generally, we need your contact details to respond to an enquiry, but we may ask you if we can use those details for subsequent communications in relation to our business. If you agree to us retaining your data for this purpose, you retain the right, at any time, to ask us to remove your details from our records either by responding to any email stating that you wish to "unsubscribe" or by contacting our Data Protection Officer directly on 01761 231840.

Your personal data will be held securely on a third-party server and deleted when no longer needed. If we need to send any data to your home address, we may provide those details to our third-party mailing house to meet your request, but we will not share your contact details with any other third parties.

If you contact us by email, we keep a record of that correspondence for the purpose of conducting our business. We do not add any email addresses received in this way to any mailing databases and again, we do not provide them to third parties.
